1.2 Tunisia Regulatory Departments and Quality Control

Tunisia Regulatory Departments

The lower house of the bicameral Parliament is the Chamber of Deputies of Tunisia (Majlis al-Nuwaab), which has 214 seats. Members are elected by popular vote to serve five-year terms. At least 25% of the seats in the House of Deputies are reserved for the opposition. More than 27% of the members of the Chamber of Deputies are women.

The upper house is the Chamber of Advisers, which includes 112 members including representatives of governorates (provinces), professional organizations and national figures. 41 members are appointed by the Head of state while the remainder are elected by their peers. About 15% of the members of the Chamber of advisors are women.

For information on Tunisia Regulatory departments contact details, please see the following link:

4.1 Tunisia Government Contact List